Attachments: The application process includes 1) completing this form, 2) submitting a 500-600 word statement of interest in the Noyce Scholarship that addresses the criteria listed below, and 3) two letters of recommendation that can speak to your understanding of the discipline of science or mathematics, your professionalism, and your desire to work with young learners in diverse settings. If the letters of recommendation submitted as part of the application to the Teacher Education Program already address these points, then the letters may also be used for the Noyce application process (applicants should indicate if this is the case). In addition to the Noyce application materials, the application documents submitted for admission to the Teacher Education Program will be considered in selecting Noyce Scholars.

Applicants' statement of interest must speak to the following criteria:

- Exceptional knowledge of academic subject matter.
- A commitment to working with students in culturally and racially diverse communities.
- The ability to work collaboratively with others, including those who have worldviews different from your own.
- The disposition to continually improve as a professional.
